Let's Start!

Where should I go? Do you have any suggestions?

Learning Outcome

Accurately use information about directions to places in a limited range of social situations.

Can Do Statements

- I can make suggestions.
- I can talk about things to do on a trip.
- I can tell someone where something is located.

Ask your partner:

- A tourist is visiting your city. What do you recommend they visit? Why?
- Where is it located?

Let's Explore!

Sally is in London! The tourist office agent is giving her suggestions.

* "You could ..." and "You can ..." are ways of giving "suggestions".

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Tourist Agent: Welcome to London!
- Sally: Thank you! Do you have any suggestions about what to see in London?
- Tourist Agent: You could visit Covent Garden. Covent Garden is an old market with a long history. It's a great spot to experience the London atmosphere.
- Sally: What can you do there?
- Tourist Agent: You can walk through the market to see art, antiques, food, and fashion.
- Sally: Is it far?
- Tourist Agent: No, it's very close. It's about a 10-minute walk.
- Sally: Are there any restaurants in the area?
- Tourist Agent: Yes. You can have a snack or something to drink at a local pub. Every building has a story to tell. There are jugglers and musicians on every street. Covent Garden is also in the theater center of London. I recommend you go there.

Learning Points

Describing Places with Prepositions of Place

When you describe places, you use prepositions of place like through, on or at.

You go through a space, like a park or a market.

You walk on a street.

You use at to talk about a place, like a pub.

Examples:

- You can walk through the market.
- There are jugglers and musicians on every street.
- You can have a snack or something to drink at a local pub.

Near, Close, Far

You can use the adjectives near, close and far to say the distance of one thing or place to another.

Near and close have the same meaning. Far has the opposite meaning.

The expression too far means something is very far in a negative way.

You often talk about how far something is using the time it takes to walk or drive. A hyphen (-) goes between the number and the word minute or hour, like 10-minute drive.

Examples:

- Sally: Is the market far?

Tourist Agent: No, it's very close. It's about a 10-minute walk.

- Sally: How far is the airport?

Tourist Agent: It's not far either. It's a 15-minute drive.
